What Prussia has Done.

As Prussia has come out of the late war ost brilliantly a brief review of what she has accomplished will serve to show what daring, address, and vigor can do. War preparations began on the 1st of May, and the army was increased from 190,000 to rms will be as follows: Per week, $12 or $2 the line. A Decision of Judge Ballard.

FIFTY-SIX BARRELS OF WHISKY, &C. When I rendered judgment in this case, a few days ago, I announced my intention to write an opinion, setting forth the reasons on which the judgment was founded. Incompressed to redeem the pledge.

It is manifest that the information does, in apt form and in apt language, set forth neglect of duty for which a forfeiture is denounced by the express terms of this section. This is conceded by the learned coursel of the claimants. They admit that the property seized must be condemned as forfeited if the facts established by the claimants are not sufficient to show that, as to the property claimed by them, there never was any forfeiture.

Their good faith cannot oust the claim of the true owner. They are exactly in the condition of every bona fide purchaser of property whose title fails, and who is therefore obliged to surrender it to the owner. They must look to the warranty of the vendor.

Indeed, I have difficulty in perceiving that the bona fide of the purchase is at all material, or that it has any relation to the grounds of forfeitare alleged in the inference of construction. all material, or that it has any relation to the grounds of forfeiture alleged in the information. This brings me to the consideration of the main question in the case: Does the fact that the claimants purchased the whisky claimed by them bona fide, and without any knowledge or suspicion of the alleged cause of forfeiture, preclude a judgment of condemnation? The conclusion to which I have arrived is, I think, sustained by a recentopinion of the learned Judge of the Southern District of Ohio in the case of the United States vs. sixteen hegsheads tobacco, and by the uniform decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States; and I have not a shadow of doubt of its correctness.

I need not say that I have arrived at my conclusion refluctantly. I have examined every provision of the statute; I have attentively considered the 180th section, and every section which declares a forfeiture, and I think that the provisions of each and all of them confirm the construction of the Octa section, which is here adopted. It would be a much more pleasing task for me to order a restoration of the property seized to the imnocent claimants than to adjudge its condemnation if I could do so consistently with my sense decision in spite of my personal inclination by a current of authorities which is irresistible.

The counsel of Walker & Co., however, ask that the judgment be limited to nine-teen of the barrels claimed by them, and that the other three seized in their possession be restored. This motion is based on the following state of facts:

The twenty-two barrels of spirits claimed by Walker & Co. are part of a lot of thirty-seven barrels purchased at the same time. Only thirty-two of the barrels were distilled by Wm. E. Reed, mentioned in the information. Five were distilled by some one else, and as to them there is neither proof nor allegation that there was any violation of law. If these five barrels remained and could be identified as among those seized, they would be restored, of course. But Walker & Co. mixed the whole thirty-seven barrels to gether in the process of rectifying, and after rebarreling and selling a portion of the compound, the twenty-two barrels seized remain, so that it is now impossible to identify any of the spirits which were and it was immediately given up to identify any of the spirits which were and it was immediately given up to identify any of the spirits which were quire that piece of vellum," said the drummer, and it was immediately given up to him. The old Jew answered without a moment's hesitation, that the words signified "Rise up, O Eternal God, and disperse the fee!" and added that it was a prayer for the success of the Austrian arms. to identify any of the spirits which were not distilled by Wm. Of all the subjects coming under the contemplation and scrutiny of scientific men there is none presenting a greater field of diversity than that of cholera, either as regards its etiology, pathology, or modus curandi. FOR CONGRESS. LOVELL H. ROUSSEAU.

ELECTION SEPTEMBER 15. SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1866.

The Courier, we believe, professe to sustain Andrew Johnson. It seems to want to have its readers think that it and its party are the only real supporters of the President's policy in Kentucky. It persists from time to time in reiterating the statement that the Union Party of Kentucky is a Radical Party, and that those who sustained the constitutional amendment in Kentucky forever prohibit ing slavery in the United States were and

It had an article yesterday in which these silly and slanderous misrepresents tions are repeated. It said:

We saw but two parties in the nation—the Democratic and the Radical. We also saw that those who desired to oppose the policy of the Radicals and stand by President Johnson were necessarily driven into the Democratic organization. The Radicals had polled upwards of fity thousand votes in Kentucky in the preceding election, and their ability for mischief was not to be sneered at or underrated.

"Those who desired to owness the policy

"Those who desired to oppose the policy of the Radicals and stand by President Johnson were necessairly driven into the Democratic organization." It follows, therefore, inevitably that all those who were not "driven" into the "Democratic" -that is, the Duvall-"organization" did "desire to oppose the policy of the Radicals" and did not "desire to stand by President Johnson"! "The Radicals had polled upward of fifty thousand votes in Kentucky in the preceding election" That "preceding election" was that in which a majority of the votes cast in the State were in favor of adopting the constitutional amendment. All who voted for that amendment are classed as "Radi-

Now, the man who did more to secu the adoption of the amendment than any hundred or thousand men in the United States is Andrew Johnson. Andrew Johnson is therefore not only a Radical, but a Radical par excellence, in the estimation of the Courier, the great Radical, the mighty Radical, the very incarnation and personification of Radicalism throughout the United States! The fifty thousand voters of Kentucky who supported the their great "Radical" leader, whom the Courier is now also humbly following! The Courier is therefore, by its own showing and logic, a Radical, and appears to court the credit of being the very concen tration and chief embodiment of Radicalism in Kentucky. What business has our Conservative(!) neighbor in the Radical camp? What upon earth has got into it all at once that it should now be shouting with all its might, at the top of its voice with mouth open and nostrils dilated and ears elongated and eyes protruding like a frightened bull-pup's, for the political hierarch of Radicalism, Andrew John-Elsewhere in the article the Courier puts on a grave and virtuous air and intimates that the Journal has been very innsistent, and is not, therefore, "in a tion to speak for the Democratic Party". Oh! did you ever? Our neighbor is the very pink of consistency, and is in a delighful position to "speak for the Democratic Party". It has been speaking very loudly for its "Democratic Party" for four or five years past. It utvery distinct words for its "Democratic Party" at Bowling Green; it vociferated for its "Democratic Party" at Nashville; it screamed for its "Democratic Party" at Chattanooga; it yelled for its "Democratic Party" at Atlanta: it screeched and snorted and tore its hair and raved and kicked and cavorted most ludicrously for its "Democratic Party" at Montgomery; and, if we may believe the Mobile Register, the "Democratic perately in love with in the past four or five years is the same "Democratic Party" whose praise he is now singing and chanting and whistling and shouting, for the Register says "the defunct Confederacy seems not to be so very dead in Kentucky The Courier is quite at liberty to speak for its "Democratic Party".

We certainly shall not seek to divide its peculiar honors in that respect. We have not the least desire to speak for its very singular "Democracy". That's bogus and cracked besides. It has been tested. When put into the crucible, it came out dross, all dross, a black, unsightly, worthless mass without a speck of the genuine ore in it.

The true Democracy stood by the Union and the Constitution. The Courier didn't. It ran away, or tried to, from both. It did its worst to destroy both. If it is sorry for its past transgressions and hidcous iniquities, and has repented, it must exhibit the proof of it before it can be permitted to speak for the Union Democ

We once heard a Methodist preacher, at a camp-meeting away down South, say he would take the Devil into the church upon promise of repentance and reform, upon probation. We shall be equally charitable and magnanimous with the Courier. It and its "Democracy" can return to their allegiance upon probation. But as they have been monstrous sinners they cannot be expected to come into full fellowship for a long time yet. They must take back seats and be modest; and after a while, if they behave well-of which their present conduct gives no very favorable augury-we will take their case into consideration and such further action in the premises as the circumstances shall

There is no doubt that the Mobile Register, when it says that "the defunct Confederacy seems not to be so very dead in Kentucky after all", expresses the real convictions of multitudes of persons both cannot without criminality accept office in the North and in the South. These persons regard the result of the struggle lieve that he will lead them into temptahere as a vindication of the "Confed- tion. eracy" and a protest against the war for the salvation of the Union. And this immense load the defenders of the President's policy in the North are obliged to carry! Ought we to be astonished if they should break down under it? We shall been in the penitentiary. Crittenden to show what sort of of Union m was voted down in Kentucky, and ooth Vallandigham's and Crittenden's to ndicate what kind of "Democracy" triimphed here.

We repeat that the arrogant pretensions of the Duvall Party to be the true Democracy of Kentucky and the disreputable efforts of its advocates to make it appear that the supporters of the constitutional mendment and of General Hobson are "Radicals" are having their natural consequences in the Northern States, and they are most damaging to true Conserva-

The allegation of the Duvall organ here that the contest was forced upon it by the Union men of the State is totally unsupported by facts. The reverse of this is the exact truth. The Union men wanted no contest, and there would not have been mpudence of the Duvall leaders had not forced it upon them. The gauntlet was defiantly thrown down to them, and they promptly took it up, and we feel warranted in saying that under similar circumstances they would do the same again and again and again. They have nothing to regret except defeat at the polls. Their failure was attributable chiefly to a want of organization and unflagging en ergy. In these respects their opponents excelled them. The latter worked like devils and spent their money with a freedom worthy of a better cause. We are quite willing for a union of all Union men upon the platform of the National Union Convention. We are willing to let by-gones be by-gones; but there must be and there shall be no flings at the Union men of this State which we shall not promptly hurl back into the teeth and eyes and faces and nostrils and mouths of those who indulge in them.

We shall take great pleasure in recognizing this as Democratic doctrine. It is not, however, according to the teachings of the apostles of Democracy in Ohio, if we have understood what they have been

The Question Settled.

The question of the relative military ca pacity of the principal Federal and Confederate Generals has frequently been mooted in private circles. If Grant and Lee, and Sherman and Joe Johnston had exchanged places, would the results have been different?

This question of the relative military capacity of the four leading Generals of the war has been definitely settled at last and by high military authority, no less authority than the editor of the Courier! The decision is, of course, in favor of Lee and ohnston, and against Grant and Sherman. Here is the decision of the great military critic and functionary verbatim:

Joe Johnston stands side by side with Robt. E. Lee as a military chieftain, and either stands a head and shoulders above any other commander in either army.

We submit that there is no room for any further agitation of the subject. One military question at least has been settled.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1866. Letter from Missouri.

St. Louis, Mo., August 22, 1866.

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

The pestilence which for three weeks has been scourging our city, appears now to be on the decline. On Thursday and Friday of last week, it reached its culminating point, since which time it has been receding, sullenly and reluctantly it is true, but still receding. There has been great difficulty in arriving at facts with regard to the present epidemic. The city government is in the hands of incompetent persons, and although anticipated, no adequate provision had been made for the emergency. So loosely and imperfectly have affairs been managed, that it has been not only difficult but even impossible to ascertain with certainty the statistics of the prevailing mortality. As nearly as may now be conjectured, fully one hundred and fifty persons during last week died daily of cholera in St. Louis, and on Thursday and Friday, the number scarcely fell short of two hundred for either day. Since then, however, we may safely announce the mortality has been diminishing. On yesterday, the interments in five of the principal cemeteries amounted to one hundred and ten. Allowing two-thirds St. Louis, Mo., August 22, 1866. or the principal cemeteries amounted to one hundred and ten. Allowing two-thirds of these to be cholera cases, we have a total of seventy-four. To these the interments in the City Cemetery, which may be estimated at (say) twenty, are to be added, which will make the total number of deaths yesterday from cholera ninety-four, which we suppose to be about the true number. This shows a decided decrease from last week, and is evidence that the disease is declining. As is usual on all occasions of general panic, much unnecessary alarm has prevailed, and many timid persons have been frightened not only out of their wits, but out of the city. It is computed that since the epidemic commenced not less than twenty thousand persons have fled from their homes, and still the exodus continues. Yesterday all the trains going eastward were crowded, and it required all of forty omnibuses to convey the frightened to the trains that left at three o'clock in the afternoon. But this cannot continue much rnoon. But this cannot continue muc idemic the public will quickly recover its propriety.

One singular feature in the present epidemic has forced itself upon attention. Heretofore in all previous visitations of the cholera, from 1832 to the present time, women and children have enjoyed comparative exemption from its attacks; while the present epidemic, with most reprehensible lack of gallantry, has chosen to select its greatest number of victims from these two least offending classes. In this city the number of adult females who have perished of the disease far exceeds that of males, while of children the proportion has been unprecedentedly great. Physicians acknowledge this change of direction which the epidemic has assumed, but of course can no demic has assumed, but of course can no more account for the vagaries of cholera than for the idiosyneracies of its victims. Political affairs in this State seem to be as little amenable to law and order as epidemics. The Radicals have the power, epidemics. The Radicals have the power, and from present appearances mean to maintain it. Repeated outrages and threatened assumptions on the part of the party in power, induced the Conservatives to appeal to the Chief Executive of the nation for redress and for protection. The result of which was Gen. Sherman's mission to the State, and his interview with Gov. Fletcher, which amounted to no great deal, so far as has been revealed, for immediately after it, Gov. Fletcher published his proclamation, wherein he receded not a particle from the arbitrary grounds he had assumed prior wherein he receded not a particle from the arbitrary grounds he had assumed prior to the interview. Now comes Mr. C. D. Drake, the reputed father of the new Radical Constitution, the cause of all the trouble, before the people in this morning's Democrat, and says, "If Mr. Andy Johnson presumes to interfere with the local affairs of this State, he does so at his peril; that the Registration act, and all the other laws to which exception has been taken, shall be enforced, and that "the President and all his officers might as well know at once, that there will be dead bodies, and a good many of them to march over, before such a game of wholesaleand lawless usurpation can be successfully played." Finally in defiance of Louis Agricultural and Mechanical Association, to take place the first week the coming October. Extraordinary exertions are being made by the present managers, not only to equal, but even to surpass the celebrity which this fair has acquired in former years. Everywhere throughout the country, we are pleased to learn, the exceedingly liberal offers of the Association are meeting with hearty rethroughout the country, we are pleased to learn, the exceedingly liberal offers of the Association are meeting with hearty responses, and, in the variety and magnitude of its attractions, the coming exhibition bids fair to exceed any of its predecessors. Especially in the exhibition of splendid stock does the fair promise to be a success. Not is this surprising, for the unusually high premiums offered must attract the linest siock from all parts of the country. Without dwelling on the $100, $200, and $300 premiums offered for the best bulls, cows, and heifers, and any number of intermediate prizes, we pass to the list of splendid prizes offered to the exhibitors of the finest trotting horses. Among them are the following:

For the fastest four-year-old mare or gelding, in harness, $300. For the fastest five-year-old horse, mare or gelding, free to all, $400. For the fastest trotting stallion, in harness, $1,000. For the best thorough-bred stallion of any age, first premium $700; second premium $300. For the fastest double team, free for all, $500. For beaten horses, free to all except the winner of the $1,000 or $800 premium, $500.

Here is presented an array of premiums that may well excite the enulation of the sall except the winner of the $1,000 or $800 premium, $500.

Here is presented an array of premiums that may well excite the emulation of the most celebrated stock-raisers of Kentucky, and bring into the field of competition the noblest specimens of the State. The above constitute a few of the largest premium softered. Those desirous of further information with regard to the fair, can obtain "premium lists and programme" by application to Mr. G. O. Kalb, Secretary of the Association, No. 14 Lindell Hotel. We expect to see Kentucky well represented at the coming Fair. The excellence of her breed of cattle, of horses, and we may add of men, though that is not so much to the purpose, is not surpassed by any other State; and if in the contest for prizes at our great National Fair she carry off the palm from all competitions, we can only say, "She well deserves it." petitors, we can only say, "She well deserves it."

A POETICAL PARENT.—The editor of the Adams (N. Y.) Visitor thus announces the birth of his youngest:

birth of his youngest:

"Ye who listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy, and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope, who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that 'the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow,' heed Dr. Johnson's advice, if you will, and 'attend to his history of Rasselas, prince of Abyssinia;' but suffer it not to fill your minds with discouragement and gloom. For youth is not all illusion, and the hopes of to-day are not always buried in the disappointments of to-morrow; else the stalwart boy that commenced his earthly career one week ago to-day (Wednesday) would never have been born. The Gulf Stream a Route to the Pole—A letter written by an eminent French geographer, and read before the French Academy, expresses the opinion that the Gulf Stream keeps its identity as far north as Siberia, and is lost only when it reaches the Polar Basin. The writer states that the Gulf Stream always melts a passage through seas of ice which it crosses, and he contended that the Pole is not always occupied byice. From this he deduces the theory that in the prolongation of the Gulf Stream between Spitzbergen and Nova Zembla to the Polar Basin ravigators should find the easiest way to reach the Arctic Pole.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES. Passed at the First Session of the Thirty ninth Congress.

single State she has become the center of a confederation which, except in name, will be completely and exclusively Prussian. From being a purely military Power, she has become, if not a naval one, at least a Power with all the means and all her opportunities for securing a position on the seas proportionate in importance to that which she now holds on the continent of Europe. She has, by her prowess, realized what has hitherto been an apparently idle dream, namely, a united Germany; nay, more, she has succeeded in making that united Germany identical with herself. She has seen her territories largely extended, her influence increased, and what is, perhaps, more gratifying than all, the pride and greatness of her only rival humbled in the dust. All this has been effected within the past few months, and to a certain extent in spite of herself and of her people. The war in which, by the advice of his Minister, the Prussian King plunged, was not popular with the nation. But it has been successful, and a people are not slow to look with favor on a war from which they gain great advantages. The military ardor of the Prussian nation became excited as soon as the first shot was fired, and the people forgot their private differences with their Sovereign in the presence of a foreign enemy. And hence it happens that, not withstanding the discouraging circumstances under which the King has parted with his Parliament, he has met it now confident of a favorable reception. The victories of the past month have caused all the differences between the Crown and the subject to be entirely forgotton.

A great portion of the speech from the throne consists in an appeal to the Chambers to let by-gones be by-gones. The finances of the country are in a satis factory condition notwithstanding the pressure occasioned by the war, "large sums having been paid out of the State revenues and existing balances, without imposing on the country any other burder than that of furnishing the supplies in kind for war purposes it is bound to provide by law." The further granting of some arrangement may be come to be-tween his Ministers and the Chambers with the view of providing for the ex-penses of the State in the manner pre-scribed by the constitution. For the past

A French journal has a learned article upon the subject of the origin of soap, in which the popular idea that it was first manufactured in Italy during the fifteenth century is controverted. The journal in question states that the ancient Gauls used soap, and that the Romans also did so, there being evidence of its manufacture at Pompeii. The ancients are said to have made it of olive oil and wood ashes. There is, however, as great mystery hanging over the origin of soap as there is over the first appearance of many other articles in common use.

The king of Prussia's Speech.

[From the London Post, August 8.]

It is rarely that it falls to the lot of a sovereign to meet his Parliament under circumstances so auspicious as those under which the King of Prussia yesterday convened the Chambers at Behn. Flushed with victory, returning from a battlefield rich in fruits the value of which even he cannot as yet realize, he is canabled to congratulate his people on having secured a position in Europe which but a few weeks since would have been pronounced unattainable by the majority of thinking men. Even Frederick the Great, at the close of his life of warfare, did not effect such changes in the kingdom which he received from his father as those which William has brought about in that which but a few years since devolved on him on the death of his brother. From being a single State she has become the center of a confederation which, except in name, will be completely and exclusively Prussian.
